THE CONFERENCE AT A GLANCE

The forthcoming edition of the Conference on Land Policy in Africa is scheduled to take place on 14-17 November 2017 in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia under the theme: "The Africa We Want: Achieving socioeconomic transformation through inclusive and equitable access to land by the youth." The theme of the conference is aligned with the African Union declaration of 2017 as African's year of youth as agents for socioeconomic transformation. This Declaration is realized through the theme "Harnessing Africa's Demographic Dividend through Investment in youth". Africa is the most youthful continent characterized by 65% of persons between the productive and employable ages of 15 to 35 years. Inclusive participation of the youth in decision making and empowerment through access to land and other natural resources will unlock Africa's economic potential by harnessing the demographic dividend. Therefore, enhancing equitable access to land by the youth will significantly contribute towards realization of the "Africa We Want" as envisioned in Agenda 2063. The Conference is expected to have a catalytic effect on land policy development and implementation in Africa through creating space for presenting research findings on land policy and governance and drawing the attention of African researchers, governments, parliamentarians, civil society, private sector and development partners on emerging land issues and challenges that need specific attention in order to achieve the objectives of the development Agenda 2063.

The Conference on Land Policy in Africa is a major policy dialogue, information sharing and learning event. Its overall goal will be to deepen capacity for land policy development and implementation with specific focus emerging issues and AU commitments as well as the contribution of the youth towards socioeconomic development through: i) improved access to knowledge and information in support of evidence based land policymaking; ii) showcasing promising practices in the field of land policy and governance and; iii) facilitating networking amongst land actors in Africa.

The Conference will adopt a scientific approach through establishing a Scientific Committee and involving research and academic institutions from across the continent and other parts of the world. However, it will be designed to also capture a broad range of local knowledge and know-how, and generate interest from CSOs, Women's organizations, Farmers organizations, traditional leaders and private sector. Selected papers from the Conference will be peer-reviewed and published in a special issue of an existing Journal on land policy.

DISCUSSION THEMES

Theme of the Conference: "The Africa We Want: Achieving socioeconomic transformation through inclusive and equitable access to land by the youth."

The main theme shall be complemented by the following sub-themes:

- Empowerment of women through strengthening the land rights;
- Technology and innovation for securing customary-based land rights for African communities;
- Transparent and sustainable land based investments
- Land Administration –Strengthening land administration institutions at national levels
- Migration, radicalization and violent extremism – linkages to youth employment and access to land for investment

In order to ensure alignment of conference contributions to these themes, a call for abstracts will be sent out as the basis for selecting contributions. This will be carried out by a Scientific Committee which will guide the substance and focus of the Conference. The Committee is comprised of experts on land policy, youth, land administration, gender and development in Africa.
